INVITATION TO UNDERGRADUATE ORGANIZATIONS URNCSST Journal Hosted Competition

Funded by the Government of Canada

The URNCST Journal offers a collaborative initiative to undergraduate organizations or associations at universities around the world called the URNCSST Journal Hosted Competition. This initiative is designed to provide such undergraduate groups - with an interest in one or more science or technology disciplines - to host a virtual abstract competition, who would not otherwise have the opportunity to do so. Undergraduate organizations and associations should have an idea of a theme for their competition as well as select the type of submissions they wish to accept (i.e. cases, research, etc.).

What are the benefits of participating?

- We believe this initiative is valuable to both the competition participants as well as the leaders of undergraduate organizations or associations.
- A formally published article containing the accepted submissions of the abstract competition provides its participants with a publication recognizable by their peers, mentors and potential future supervisors.
- The undergraduate organization's leaders (and future leaders) are provided with the legacy required to further grow and advance their mission and provides the executive team with recognizable authorship on the publication.
